Agatha Koehler/Keller Fetsch Genealogy

Presented by Mervin Philip Weiss – OUR FAMILY STORY 2007
A Cultural Heritage <> The Iron Crosses have become a symbol to me of the transplanted culture of the Germans from Russia. Many features of the Rhineland German culture followed the migrants into South Russia and flourished there, with some adaptations for over a hundred years, before making their way to the Great Plains of North America.

May 2006 - Dear Kutschurganers. Selz Museum.....

I just wanted to be sure that members of this list (KRIG) were aware of this local initiative in Selz, driven mainly by Louisa Riesling. I have twice been a guest in Louisa's home.... Louisa's life-story mirrors the story told by so many Kutschurganers who were expelled from their homes in 1944 and herded to Poland, only to be scattered in exile throughout Soviet Russia in 1945. Louisa has been able to return to Selz and re-claim her grandfather's home, the home of Pius Rissling, across the street from the decaying Cathedral of Selz.

Karolina Fromm, Margaretha Budayev

Louisa feels driven to preserve and tell the story of the Germans who once lived in the Kutschurgan district. She has been promoting the Museum idea with foreign visitors for several years, and has slowly accumulated enough money from sympathetic supporters to establish a German Museum in Selz.

Of course, there is no local money for such an initiative. I have been most anxious to return to see what Frau Riesling has been able to do since my last visit in June, 2005. At that time, members of the Robert Schneider group gave her the amount of further monies, which she calculated was necessary to "open the doors". So I was pleased to read Michael Miller's report, and my visit is now full of anticipation.

I am sure that Frau Riesling will also have a budget figure in mind for future work at the Museum. She will be looking to North Americans and Europeans with Kutschurgan roots to help her with this project. I have been to similar museums in the former German villages of Karlsruhe and Katharinental. They are the best way to make sure that "our" story is not forgotten in today's Ukraine.

My ancestors, by Mervin Weiss 2007

One of my eight paternal great great grandmothers was Agatha Keller. She was born 16 May 1824 in Wintzenbach, Bas Rhin (Alsace, France), daughter of Peter (or Pierre Johann) Keller and Francoise Klein. This family emigrated to South Russia in 1835, settling in the village of Selz, about 40 miles north-west of Odessa, on the Kutschurgan Liman (estuary of the Dniester River). Agatha had at the least one sibling who accompanied them to Selz. This was Magdalena, born in 1819, who later married Franz Jakob of Selz in 1841.

Agatha Keller married my great-great-grandfather Karl Fetsch, who was born in Selz about 1825, based on his age listed on their 1847 marriage record. Karl was the son of one of the original settlers in Selz, Odessa district, Michael Fetsch, who also served as the village's first mayor. Karl's mother was Elizabeth Reinhart. Karl's father, Michael Fetsch, was married 4 times, and fathered 21 children. One of Karl's brothers was also named Michael Fetsch. He too was married four times, and had twelve children. The Fetsches were one of the more prominent families in Selz, and their progeny born in Selz numbers in the hundreds.

Selz birth records in the Saratov Archives reveal six children born to Agatha and Karl – Helena 1848, Franziska 1849, Johann 1854, Elisabeth 1855, Michael 1857, and Peter 1861. Of these, I have further information on only Franziska and Michael. I do not know what year Agatha died, only that Karl outlived her, this coming from a World War II era EWZ record which listed Karl Fetsch and wife Anna Jerger. This was either a mistake, or Karl had married a second time. Neither do I know when Karl Fetsch died.

Franziska Fetsch, born 21 December 1849 in Selz married Kasimir Riffel of Mannheim. They were married in Selz on 13 October 1869. Weddings were frequently celebrated during this season immediately following the harvest. In the quest for land, Kasimir and Franziska moved to Culelia, in the Dobrudja region of Romania. Five of their children accompanied them to Canada in 1906, when they were some of the first settlers in the Prelate, Saskatchewan (Canada) area. Both Kasimir and Franziska are buried in the Blumenfeld cemetery behind Sts. Peter and Paul church. This was the first Catholic Church in the district, and the Riffel family was instrumental in its founding. The Riffels of Prelate produced five Catholic priests and two nuns.

Michael Fetsch, born 05 May 1857, was my great grandfather. On 04 November 1880 he married Barbara Schwab of Mannheim. They had eight children, although I located only seven birth records. Of these, I know that four lived to adulthood. Two stayed in Russia, and two emigrated to Canada. The eldest son, Adam Fetsch, came to Canada, through North Dakota in 1909, settling in the Prelate, Saskatchewan area, taking up a homestead right beside his Riffel cousins mentioned above. Four years later, his younger sister, Brigetta, married to Conrad Weiss, followed Adam to Canada. Brigetta Fetsch and Conrad Weiss, both born in Selz and married in Selz in 1908, are my grandparents. They took up a homestead south of Blumenfeld, closer to present day Fox Valley, Sask. where I grew up. My dad was born in the sod-hut they built on land they could call their own – a privilege denied them in Selz, Odessa district.

Barbara Fetsch (1895) was another daughter of Michael Fetsch and Barbara Schwab. She married Joseph Goldade of Selz. Barbara and Joseph and six children are registered in the EWZ records of World War Two Poland, but no trace has ever been found of them since 1944. It is assumed this family perished in exile. They are some of the "victims of Yalta".

Michael Fetsch and Barbara Schwab also had a son named Michael, born in the year 1900 in Selz, continuing the traditional name of their ancestor who first came to Selz in 1808. He married Katharina Baumann of Strasburg. They and their two children born in Selz also made the Trek to Poland in 1944. Michael was drafted into the Wafen SS and later captured. He was subsequently held in a French reconstruction labor camp near Lyons, and not released until the fall of 1948. This heart-wrenching family story was told to me by his children, Eugen and Ida, when I visited them in Leverkusen, Germany in 2006.

Notes for AGATHA KOEHLER/KELLER:

A.) Name spelled Koehler, which we have seen several times in the Russian records for Keller. <> 1852 census HH# 62. The names of children look like they were taken right out of the Keller Family Bible! NOTE: Agatha's grandfather Keller signed his name as "Michael", father (Johann) Peter, mother Franciska, etc. TJK06

B.) Fetsch and Vetsch are the same name with the "f" sound. In German, the "f" sound is printed "v", in English, the "f" sound is of course printed "f". My cousins in Germany spell it as Vetsch. My cousins in Canada spell it as Fetsch. I have seen both spellings in the Dakotas. MW06

C.) An August 2004 note from Bob Schuh has a Magdalena Fetsch, daughter of Karl Fetsch and Agatha Koehler, married to Franz J. Jakob born abt. 1823. Franz is the son of Michael Jakob born about 1798 in Neeweiler and Viktoria Becker. I cannot substantiate this because I have not seen another reference to this statement, and Franz Jakob would have been a lot older than Magdalena who could not have been born until after 1847. MW06
